

Orwell Street Church

Oamaru

Pastors – Job Description

Oamaru is New Zealand's sharpest town. It is the Steampunk capital of New Zealand (and possibly the world). Locals are known for riding Penny Farthings, making sculptures out of Oamaru stone, firing the odd ray gun and being generally good folk.

Orwell Street Church is a community of Christians who meet to honour God and encourage each other in following Jesus. We have a heart for those who do not know Jesus Christ and are focused on seeking opportunities to share His love and message.

We believe a church should function and feel like a close-knit family where loving relationships are developed and valued. We encourage this through Sunday services, meeting in small groups and encouraging each other throughout the week.

Underlying all this is our commitment to the God we learn about in the Bible and through the life of Jesus.

A diverse group of folks call Orwell Street Church home. We are represented across the age groups from young kids through to the elderly. We have a large Kids Club, a small youth group and several home groups.

We are looking for a person who is looking to serve God. While there are lots of characteristics we could look for in a pastor, the most important would be an outward-looking community focus. It is important for a church to look after and support those within the church, but we believe that when our focus is to meet the needs of those in the wider community (and beyond), the rest will naturally fall into place. The successful applicant will be expected to have some teaching duties but will not be expected to deliver a sermon every Sunday.

Our hope as a church is to find a pastor willing to grow with us as we all strive to find ways to serve Jesus and become the people that God has made us to be.
